Principal's Message

Ms. Yachana Chawla

“Education is the most powerful weapon which you can use to change the world.”
- Nelson Mandela

In today's world of cutthroat competition, education is the most valuable asset an individual can possess. It seeks to free man from parochial mindset besides making him more civilized to bring about changes in his attitude and outlook.

Education takes place at home and in the educational institutions. Children learn many things from home, which is the cradle of education. Teachers can only supplement to what they learn from home.

Prelude Public School lays great stress not only on imparting knowledge but also on the overall growth of each child into an individual with mental, physical, intellectual and spiritual owes.

I am proud to say that Prelude Public School has always tried to go beyond the traditional way of teaching by instilling in the students the self-confidence necessary to encounter challenges that are in store for them. They are also taught values such as integrity, compassion, tolerance so that they can emerge stronger when they are buffeted by harsh realities of life.

Change is the order of the day. We witness it in every sphere including education. Any change that is introduced should be for the betterment of the children. Students should be taught values as they are our future. They need to be conscientious and innovative young leaders, besides being taught accountability and to think outside the box. They should not be allowed to bend before the prevailing gust of change.

This school newsletter serves as a springboard for the children's creative urge to blossom naturally. The reports of the various activities have added to the value of the newsletter. This School newsletter comes to your hands with a name, Manjari. As the name suggests, it provides a broad view of what is happening within the four walls of Prelude Public School and also the future towards which it is heading. We are grateful to the management, colleagues and students for their sustenance and encouragement. The magazine Editorial Board has worked with passion and we are indebted to the Management for their cooperation.
